

Education and career framework for nurses in primary health care: Be involved in the discussion.

KEY STAKEHOLDER WORKSHOPS

The Australian Primary Health Care Nurses Association (APNA) is working to develop an education and career framework for nurses in primary health care with the aim of improving employment opportunities, recruitment and retention of nurses within, or considering a career, in primary health care settings.

The Key Stakeholder Workshops provide an opportunity for leaders in primary health care nursing, from clinical, policy, research and education settings, to meet, discuss and debate key points in the development of the Education and Career Framework.
