Welcome to the 2014 National Nurse Education Conference.

On behalf of the Australian Nurse Teachers' Society (ANTS) and its Conference Organising Committee I welcome you to the National Nurse Education Conference 2014 in Adelaide.

The conference theme of "Changing Boards" reflects the significant impact technology is having on the content and delivery of education for professionals. Within a generation of clinical practice we have moved from using blackboards through whiteboards and now virtual boards in presenting skills and knowledge to healthcare professionals across all stages and levels within their careers. This Conference seeks to highlight the current and future trends in healthcare education and the role technology is playing to enhance and innovate.

The conference theme is broadly defined to examine developments in professional education in both its academic and professional aspects across the spectrum of nursing as a profession. Anyone who has a professional or vocational interest in education for clinical professionals is encouraged to attend and explore innovative educational and training strategies for practice.

The conference showcases invited speakers and presenters from across a broad-range of health related professions to discuss issues related to best practice in health in the belief that a multidisciplinary approach to patient care is now integral to how we as professionals work and study in a modern health system. We look forward to seeing you at the 15th National Nurse Education Conference to explore further the issues, challenges and promises in nursing education in all of its complexity.

Michelle Girdler,

National President, ANTS

Chair, NNEC 2014 Conference Organising Committee

Venue

Adelaide Convention Centre, North Terrace, Adelaide SA 5000

The multi-award winning Adelaide Convention Centre enjoys a global reputation for excellence and is consistently ranked among the world's top convention centres. Their reputation is second to none and is founded on superior product, world-class facilities, and constant maintenance of already exceptional standards.

Adelaide, South Australia

Adelaide provides the perfect combination of business and pleasure. Arguably the world's best wine, food and environment are wrapped up in Australia's most convenient city. Adelaide is the host of many international events and is known as Australia's arts capital. It is famous for its internationally renowned wineries and as the world capital of Australia's national gemstone, opal. Adelaide Zoo has been entrusted with the care of two Giant Pandas, Wang Wang and Funi, an attraction not to be missed!

The most convenient aspect of Adelaide is the closeness of facilities to each other, with the Adelaide Convention Centre located near international hotels, cafes, restaurants and shops that are all within walking distance.

Keynote Speakers

Associate Professor
Lydia Dennett

Ms Dennett was appointed to the role of Chief Nurse and Midwifery Officer for SA Health in December 2011.

Ms Dennett trained as an intensive care nurse before immigrating to Australia from London.

In 2004, Ms Dennett was appointed as the Director of Nursing/Campus Manager of Western Hospital, and Divisional Director of Cardiology and Intensive Care Services for Western Health. Ms Dennett was subsequently appointed as the Executive Director of Nursing and Midwifery for Western Health in 2007.

In her current role as the Chief Nurse and Midwifery Officer for SA Health, Lydia has the responsibility of providing professional leadership, as well as providing advice and direction on a diverse range of nursing and midwifery issues, including workforce planning, development and reform, recruitment and retention, best practice initiatives, research and policy development. In line with this is the requirement to influence and represent the professions to continue to enhance the quality of care delivered to consumers, and to ensure that practice is contemporary and evidence-based.

Lydia has a strong commitment to ensuring continuing education and professional development of nurses and midwives.

Lydia holds a Masters degree in Business of Management and is an Adjunct Associate Professor with Victoria University, Melbourne, Victoria.

She has been a surveyor for the Australian Council on Healthcare Standards since 2005.

Nicole Graham

Nicole Graham is the Chief Executive of scosa, the Spastic Centres of South Australia Inc.

Qualified with a Master of Business Administration and Bachelor of Management (Employee Relations), Nicole brings a wealth of skills and knowledge crucial to building on scosa's service excellence at an extraordinarily young age. In fact she is the youngest ever CEO of scosa and one of the youngest CEOs in the country.

When she joined scosa in 2004 from a human resources role at Mitsubishi Motors, it was her first taste of just how challenging life can be working with a not for profit group.

Within three years of joining scosa, Nicole was appointed General Manager of Workforce Planning and Development and later General Manager of Client Services.

In this role Nicole implemented a new model for service delivery which was a world's first.

In 2007, Nicole commenced a Master of Business Administration for professional development and recognition of her business acumen.

In 2008, an appointment as Deputy Chief Executive Officer whilst the existing CEO was on leave only served to whet her appetite even further for the top job. In March 2010 that dream was achieved.

Since becoming CEO, Nicole has driven a number of successful initiatives that most of all makes a positive difference in the lives of over 350 South Australians living with a disability.

Nicole has established a genuine respect and an excellent reputation within the disabilities sector through her active participation and representation on peak bodies and Government working parties.

Nicole contributes to develop the living and social skills of our clients so that they can become valued members of their local communities, enjoy activities and social interaction.

In addition to Nicole's role at scosa, she is also the President of the YWCA of Adelaide and is Vice President on the National Board. These roles are a sign of Nicole's commitment to social justice and community inclusion, and promoting the rights of all Australians.

Keynote Speakers

Dr Saravana Kumar

Dr. Kumar is a Senior Lecturer and the Deputy Director of the International Centre for Allied Health Evidence (ICAHE), School of Health Sciences, and University of South Australia. He was the NHMRC NICS-MAC Fellow from 2008-2010 and in 2010 was awarded a South Australian Tall Poppy Award. Dr. Kumar, as a health services researcher, has keen interest in bridging the gap between research evidence and clinical practice. Underpinning this interest is identifying and breaking down of barriers in uptake of research evidence into clinical practice and its influence in the quality of health care service delivery. Dr. Kumar also teaches topics on evidence-based practice and evidence implementation to students and health professionals, nationally and internationally. He also acts as a consultant to several national and international agencies on issues pertinent to evidence-based practice.

Prof Kerry Reid-Searle

Dr Kerry Reid Searle is a Professor at CQUniversity Rockhampton Campus. Kerry has had extensive nursing experience in the Torres Strait and regional Queensland. She has been involved in undergraduate nursing education for the past 21 years and has been the recipient of numerous teaching awards. Some of these include the CQUniversity Vice Chancellors Teaching Award in 2008 and 2010, a Faculty of Science Engineering and Health teaching award in 2008 and 2010, an Australian Learning and Teaching Citation for her outstanding contribution to student learning in 2008 and 2012, was named Pearson/Australian Nurse Teacher Society- Nurse Teacher of the Year in 2009 and in 2012 was awarded and Australian University Teaching Excellence Award. Kerry has become known nationally and internationally for her pioneering work in creating, designing and researching an innovative simulation strategy which suspends undergraduate nursing students in disbelief. Kerry is also well published in international journals for her work around medication safety and has been the principal author, as well co author, of several nursing texts books which have been sold nationally and internationally.

Invited Speakers

Lesley Sieglhoff

Lesley has had many years' experience in the nursing profession during which time she has had what she calls an eclectic and most interesting experience as a nurse. Education is an abiding passion and has been a focus underpinning the way she has functioned in each of her roles whether in the past in clinical practice, as a hospital nurse educator and in-service educator and over the past 30 years in health services management and leadership roles, 2 years in Jakarta and then predominantly in rural health and aged care in SA, NSW and Victoria. During this time she also undertook many important research projects focusing on rural nursing one of which was the NSW Health funded study of the Role of the Rural and Remote Nurse Practitioner- Wilcannia.

In more recent years Lesley has worked in academic education and leadership roles in Ballarat University and LaTrobe University, Bendigo and currently at Flinders University. Lesley is one of those SA educators who cut their teeth in the tertiary education sector in those early days of the 1970s at Sturt SACAE. She left this position to fulfill a personal goal of learning about how health care organisations were managed so that she could return to education with a true understanding of this important activity having experienced the highs lows and even the pain of such roles. At the time of embarking on the interesting professional journey where she ultimately traversed various roles she always had a powerful wish to return to her tertiary education roots at Sturt, which of course is now Flinders University School of Nursing & Midwifery. She feels privileged to have achieved this and sees herself as generative, working with new academics to assist them to move forward in this complex academic world that nurses face today.

Invited Speakers

Prof Alison Kitson

Professor Alison Kitson, Dean of Nursing at the University of Adelaide since January 2009. In 2013 Professor Kitson was appointed as the Executive Director – Innovation and Reform of Nursing within the Central Adelaide Local Health Network and is also a Co-Director of the Centre for Evidence Based Practice South Australia (CEPSA), a collaborating centre of the Joanna Briggs Institute, and is an Associate Fellow of Green Templeton College, University of Oxford in the UK. Before coming to Australia she held a number of strategic leadership and executive positions in one of the world's largest professional organisations for nursing, the Royal College of Nursing of the United Kingdom. Her research over the last 20 years has focused on knowledge translation (KT) activity relating to better understanding the mechanisms that enable new knowledge (in the forms of guidelines or innovations in practice such as new roles) to be introduced into clinical practice. She is internationally recognised for her work in this area, and in particular as the originator of one of the most widely cited and used KT frameworks, the Promoting Action on Research Implementation in Health Services (PARiHS) Framework.

Prof Adrian Esterman

Professor Esterman is Chair of Biostatistics at the University of South Australia and an adjunct professor in the JCU School of Public Health and Tropical Medicine. He initially trained in statistics at the University of Bath, UK, followed by a Masters degree in medical statistics at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine, and finally a PhD in epidemiology at Flinders University. He has nearly 40 years of experience as a biostatistical and epidemiological consultant. His career includes seven years as a WHO staff member based in Geneva and Copenhagen and 14 years as a Principal Epidemiologist with the South Australian government. He is a Chief Investigator on several million dollars of competitive grants, is a member of the editorial board of three scientific journals and is a reviewer for many others. He has an h-index of 33 with over 200 publications.

Didy Button

Didy Button has been involved in nursing education for over 25 years at the tertiary level. She has been a finalist on two occasions in the HESTA Australian Nursing awards in the education innovation category in 2009 for and 2012. The nomination in 2009 recognised Didy and her team's development of an online study aid to develop health professional communication in undergraduate students. In 2012 Didy was part of a team that developed an online game to improve medication terminology recognition and pronunciation to assist nursing students whose first language is not English. In 2011 Didy and her team received an Australian Teaching and Learning Council (ALTC) citation for the online health professional communication development study aid and its sustained success in the undergraduate program at Flinders University School of Nursing & Midwifery.

Didy is currently researching how Australian undergraduate nursing students and their educators use computer information technology as part of her Doctor of Philosophy studies.

Invited Speakers

Dr Marian Eckert

Marion brings with her more than 25 years experience in the health care industry, working in various roles in South Australia and overseas.

Currently undertaking the Masters of Public Health through The University of Adelaide, previously completed a Professional Doctorate focused on a portfolio of research (both qualitative and quantitative) related to the methods of providing education for patients pending a cardiac intervention completed in 2003, through the University of Adelaide. Masters of Nursing Science completed in 1998, Graduate Diploma of Cardiac Nursing, The University of Adelaide 1996 and the Cardiac Care Certificate and Hyperbaric Certificate, Royal Adelaide Hospital 1994 & 1992 and 1990 was awarded the Diploma of Applied Science, Flinders University of South Australia.

Marion has also completed less formal training in the areas of clinical practice improvement programs, diploma in training and assessment (TAA) and Certificate IV (TAE) through TAFE and SA Health funded senior leadership programs. Her skills relate to a dedicated approach to improving the health outcomes of the community, through quality leadership, operational, and managerial experience, proven ability to identify clear strategic goals, partnerships and the ability to engage people at all levels to achieve quality outcomes.

Marion is driven by quality outcomes, through her involvement in direct clinical care, management and executive roles diversifying also to the Joanna Briggs Institute, and the Safety and Quality Unit based at the Royal Adelaide Hospital. She was an elected member of the Nurses Board of South Australia (2005-2010) and in 2006 was appointed to Nursing Director, Centre for Nursing, Midwifery Education and Research at the Flinders Medical Centre. In 2009 she received a SA Health Award for Nursing and Midwifery Excellence, and her team at FMC was awarded the SA Health Award for Excellence in Non-Clinical Services in 2010. In November 2012 she joined the Cancer Council SA as the General Manager – Cancer Control. Whilst the challenges of the new role have a different focus, leadership is still defined by achieving positive results.

Juliet Keaton

Juliet has been a registered nurse for 27 years and has worked across the acute, residential and community care sectors. She developed a particular interest in wound management and currently sits as Treasurer of the Australian Wound Management Association WA.

Juliet leads the Education Program at WoundsWest, which is tasked with the development of interactive wound education solutions both, online and face-to-face. She is an Education Activity Representative and facilitator for the RACGP, enabling WoundsWest to become an Accredited Education Provider.

Daniel McDonald

Daniel McDonald has worked as a librarian for the Darling Downs Hospital and Health Service for the past 7 years. During this time he has established a clinical liaison role with Oncology and Palliative Care, and with the Acute Pain Service. He spoke of his work with the APS at the 2011 Australia New Zealand Society of Pain Medicine Annual Scientific Meeting. Daniel has also designed and implemented a service that seeks to collect online audio presentations and make them accessible to clinicians. This project was awarded the 2011 Health Libraries Australia Innovation Award and was one of three finalists in the 2011 ALIA Information Online Group Excellence Award. Daniel has spoken of this project at conferences in Brisbane, Canberra and Brussels, and has also published on this work.

Invited Speakers

Kim Patra

Kim is an expatriate nurse who has lived and worked in Bali for almost three decades. Kim grew up and qualified as a nurse & midwife in Australia, and is now a registered member of I.B.I., the Association of Indonesian Midwives.

Kim has spent the best part of her adult years in Bali during which she has gained a deep understanding of the local language, culture and religion. Her unique perspective gives her an extensive understanding of the challenges that expatriates face when dealing with the local medical services whether it be for birthing or other general medical services.

It was not so long ago on Bali that information of any kind was hard to come by on the Island, so if there was a health issue, Expats called on her for all kinds of advice. Few long term expatriates have not had cause to call upon her expertise at some time or another.

Kim's involvement was pivotal in the Bali bombing that took place in the morning of October 13th 2002. She was one of hundreds of medical volunteers and professionals who arrived on that horrific scene during the first traumatic days following the destruction of a busy Kuta nightspot that claimed the lives of hundreds, wounding and maiming many more.

Kim Patra's book, In The Arms of The Angels, is a poignant account of that horrible event through the eyes of a health professional, an expatriate, a woman and a mother. It is a true story told with empathy, humor and grace as she salutes her colleagues, her peers and her patients.

Over the past several decades Kim has taken on several health challenges flying as a nurse escort for over 10 years, writing an informative health column on the local expatriate paper for as long, and initiating a mobile health care service which has now progressed into a clinic where she practices as an independent nurse / midwife.

Kim is also active in supporting HIV affected children on the Island.
